

Nicole Shaw is a devoted wife and mother of five children ages twenty-two down to seven years of age. In her earlier years, without realization, Nicole was being groomed with personal life experience she refers to with a smile as “a resume of unwanted experience.”

Over the past fifteen years, Nicole has worked as a trade school instructor, a children’s church teacher, and an intensive classroom aide. Other areas of experience include, transportation with both special needs and mainstream students, foster children, along with mentorship, advocacy and coaching.

Pursuing the vision that was placed on her heart many years ago, in 2017, Nicole along with her husband Dennis, founded SheWorth. SheWorth was formed to empower and strengthen females of all ages and backgrounds to acknowledge their self-worth through education and leadership. After years of working with the younger generations and developing a strong desire for change in the community, SheWorth is a dream come true..

After suffering from her own identity issues and starting the journey to healing, Nicole says she was introduced to herself at the age of twenty-eight, then a mom of three little girls with a pending divorce.

Nicole Shaw is now operating in her purpose to change the world one girl at a time, not only in her community and alongside of others with hearts alike, but also as a public speaker offering workshops.

“We STILL believe it takes a village!”
