

Brief Bio

Dana S. Branham has worked in financial services for over 13 years. She recently sold her advising practice to return to work in Corporate America, and now works as a Client Service Consultant at LPL Financial. Prior to becoming an advisor, she worked in various finance-related roles at a Union, in Construction, and at a Fortune 500 Company.

Dana is a graduate of Howard University, where she earned a Bachelors of Business Administration degree in Finance. Since then, she has earned a MBA from the University of Kentucky and a Master's Certificate in Project Management from George Washington University. She also holds several securities and insurance licenses.

Dana enjoys educating the community about investing through seminars and workshops. In 2019, she published her first book, Money Mayday: 7 Steps to Cleaning Up Your Money Mess. Money Mayday walks readers through, in an easy conversational tone, the sometimes-difficult steps to cleaning up their money mess. Through a Biblically-based approach, Branham shares her own journey of cleaning up the mess created while running her own business.

Additionally, Dana is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Incorporated and is the founder and adviser to God's Girls, a faith-based enrichment program for teen girls.
