

Minister Quionne Matchett

Quionne Matchett is a licensed minister, preacher, speaker, prayer intercessor, and mentor. Having overcome personal tragedy, rejection and setbacks, she helps others understand the stability and strength that comes through a life submitted to the Word of God. As CEO of Quionne Matchett Ministries, she aims to inspire hope and empower women to be restored, walk in wholeness, and fulfill their God-given assignment.

Quionne is an educated and professional woman, as she holds a Master of Labor and Employment Relations degree from Rutgers University, and has extensive experience in academia, labor and employment relations, mediation, collective bargaining, and negotiations.

Quionne is warm, practical, transparent, and engaging. She is an anointed woman of God called to speak life and minister healing to hurting people. She is passionate about encouraging others how to live up to their full potential in Christ so they can fulfill their divine purpose.

Quionne resides in New Jersey with her husband Durane. They have been married 21 years and have three handsome sons, all of whom are currently attending college.
